Constitutionally protected rights guaranteed to be violated if you're President Trump or one of his associates

By Jack Hellner

Most lawyers are Democrats who work very hard to keep Democrats in office. They make a lot of money, because "lucrative government contracts flow to their profession" from Democrats. These litigators are certainly rewarded tremendously when the government is run by Democrats, and they show their gratitude and loyalty by repaying the favor. You might recall this headline from Fox News: "Trial lawyers benefiting from lucrative public contracts make 99% of donations to Democrats, report finds[.]"

The number of lawyers in the U.S. per person dwarfs that of other countries by far; there are 1.26 million mouths to feed, and the Democrat party feeds them very well.

Unsurprisingly, President Trump is having a difficult time finding lawyers to represent him. Last year, after the raid on Mar-a-Lago by Merrick Garland's (in)Justice Department, Trump sought to hire seasoned lawyers — but repeatedly heard "no." At one point, as reported by The Washington Post, the former president's legal team included "a Florida insurance lawyer who's never had a federal case, a past general counsel for a parking-garage company and a former host at far-right One America News."

Of course, he also had trouble as soon as he took office to find attorneys to represent him in all the investigations based on the false Russian collusion stories. From Yahoo News:

Top lawyers with at least four major law firms rebuffed White House overtures to represent President Trump in the Russia investigations. ...

The unwillingness of some of the country's most prestigious attorneys and their law firms to represent Trump has complicated the administration's efforts to mount a coherent defense strategy to deal with probes being conducted by four congressional committees as well as Justice Department special counsel Robert Mueller.

They couldn't afford to ruin their reputations by defending a president whom Democrats want to destroy, and whose America first policies they hate.

I am sure they would have no trouble defending murderers, pedophiles, corrupt politicians like Hillary Clinton and Joe Biden, or the radical leftist groups that staged violent riots after Trump won in 2016 (and, as we all know, in 2020, too), but no mercy for a president whose policies shook up the power structure and handed political control, money, and freedom back to the American citizenry.

Jack Smith has resorted to charging lower-level employees, like valet Waltine "Walt" Nauta, presumably in an effort to intimidate them and get them to turn on Trump. It doesn't seem to be working, so now Smith is seeking to block Nauta from representation by Stanley Woodward, his chosen lawyer, because apparently Woodward defends too many people surrounding Trump.

Why is Smith so worried? Shouldn't he want to adhere to the Constitution, which affords the accused "the assistance of counsel for ... defense"? If Smith is doing his job to mete out impartial justice and strive for truth and objectivity, doesn't he care that certain figures must overcome seemingly insurmountable odds to find legal representation given the political climate?

How about we neutralize attorneys in the Justice Department who spend so much time targeting Trump, and those surrounding him, because they obviously have a conflict of interest? How many people have they targeted the last seven years? Have any of them lied to the FISA court? How many of these federal judges and/or prosecutors are Democrat donors? Speaking of a conflict of interest...does the name Tanya Chutkan ring a bell?

The swamp is deep and must be drained to save America.

Everyone in America has the right to counsel in a criminal case—EXCEPT Trump. The Dems boast that MAGA stands for “make attorneys get attorneys.” Any lawyers who represent Trump will immediately find themselves the subject of an ethics complaint. In these cases the government—of New York State, probably soon Georgia, and of the US—has the burden to prove him guilty. But it won't be hard, if he can't mount a defense. It would take an established litigation law firm to muster all the evidence of fraud in the 2020 election (which his team could not do, nobody could, in the 2 month period between Nov 2020 and Jan 2021) and present it in court.

And Trump cant engage such a firm! He's lucky if he can even engage ONE such Lawyer! But where is that one lone Lawyer gonna get the team he or she needs to assemble and present the evidence?

Oh, you're right about “the swamp”, but one man alone can't drain it. Trump has already done his best, and he'll keep trying for our sakes. But y'know what they say about quicksand: the more you struggle.....

Jack,

Like a pack of Hyenas to a man, and woman, the liberal press had this constant smirk and smiles on their faces, as they announced with glee the indictments and arraignment on Donald John Trump... Each hounded any guest on, trying to force the Federal court to televise this circus and turn it into a true fascist show trial.

Each in turn made mention of the “Historic” nature of the first time a president has been criminally charged. None noticed it was they themselves and their Tin Ear, the media as Democrat propagandists since Trump won in 2016, and they created this Monster, so now it's time to slay him, after all Russia, Russia, Russia must be maintained.

With false charges are their avenue to TREASON against the Constitution itself.

Charging a man with plenary powers by Constitutionally inferior Officers is a nullity, yet they subscribe wide powers to Biden and his DOJ, they deny to Trump. Biden Geheime documents in his garage and Chinese hands, is criminal, as he did not have any right by law to these documents, though Trump had plenary powers, guarded by the Secret Service, Biden not charged, Trump charged.

Now with phony insurrection of Jan. 6th, and defrauding the government for essentially his opinions, this criminalizes the first amendment, to speak against Democrats and their tyranny, brings destruction to oneself.

That will bring about the destruction of the Constitution and our rights as currently comprised means nothing to these fascists, they want unbridled power and that means many conservatives and citizens will suffer loss of life for their power.

Democrat tyranny kills, and they are coming after everyone who does not vote for them, East Palestine Ohio tells that story they voted for Trump, so they deserved the chemical spill.

NEWSFLASH:

No one deserves a chemical spill...!

UPDATE:

Liberal media has begun a Crusade with non-stop coverage to get Congress and the Courts to televise the Show Trial of the Ages, Trump versus Democrat ideology brought to fruition, this will not end will for anyone.

This is war.

You failed to mention that the left has funded/compiled a whole organization of lawyers/staff tasked with targeting and destroying lawyers/firms who represent Trump and/or challenge state/federal election laws/outcomes. Any lawyer or firm who does so risks losing their license, current/future business and faces retribution from our weaponized government/agencies. How many individuals are going to willingly subject themselves to the wrath of the DOJ, FBI, IRS etc?

This is the state of law since its poisoning by Herbert Marcuse and others: Don't teach them to prevail within the rules, but to change the rules so they always win. And they believe this is virtuous.

It's saddening
Democrat judges and lawyers
Intentionally break every rule of fairness, defy constitution, defy election laws. Lie cheat and steal

This can lead to war, you know. I believe it may very well be their intent. War here, and war around the world.

War is just the ultimate distraction. It keeps the commoners occupied while the elites solidify their position.

It also provides them with the pretense to crush all dissent, declare martial law, lockdowns, curfews, gun confiscation, web censorship etc. I have no doubts that they're already game planning their response to the public backlash their tyrannical acts will inevitably provoke. Our government has officially declared itself to be our rulers and 90% of Americans are clueless to that fact. Scary, terrifying times indeed...

Kinda like the arrest of DJT to distract from the infiltration of the marxist plan.
